New Car Approved

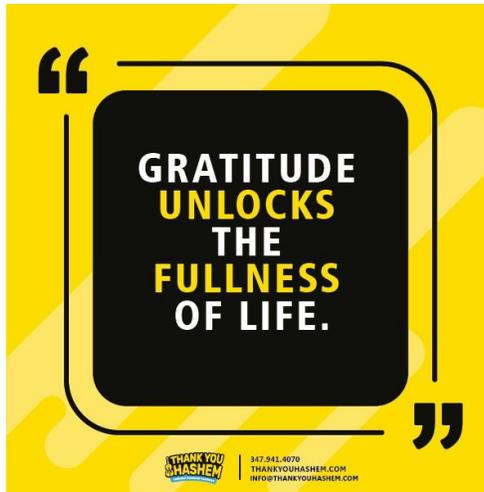

My car was recently totaled, and I was nervous about getting approved for another car. Of course, I Thanked Hashem for not letting anyone get hurt, and for all the Chasudim he showed us at the accident. Then I promised to Thank Hashem publicly, if I would get approved for another car. Thank You Hashem I was approved!!

Heathy Baby

Our newborn baby had a health complication. The doctor said, "In 2 hours if it's not better, we have to go to the hospital". I promised to thank Hashem in public if my baby will feel better. Thank You Hashem the problem is gone, and we did not have to go to the hospital!!

A Good Move

I'm late for posting and thank you Hashem for reminding me to keep my promise. This happened a short while ago to me. I was supposed to move a certain day. I rented a truck and had 5 guys (from my days in the business), set up to do the move. I pulled up in the truck to where our stuff was stored, and waited, and waited. After about an hour and a half, all five had different reasons why they cannot come. I wasted the day, the truck rental, and still had to figure out how to get my stuff moved. All moving companies were booked up solid. Sitting there in the truck, I started thinking about the stories posted here. But I was thinking, how often do we get to notice them live. I decided to ask Hashem directly for help and promised to thank in public if somehow I got guys and the move went smoothly. Not long after, two guys were on the way! (2 guys is normally a joke for such a size move). Not only did they come, but they also felt so bad that they somehow did the job faster than it would normally take 5 guys. Then when everything was in my house, the guy I used to use for putting together furniture, randomly showed up and put everything together! From being totally lost about how I am going to move, to having it all work out so smoothly is unbelievable! Only Hashem can pull off such a story for us. Keep on thanking Hashem. It is all you have to do. Thank you Hashem!

Thought of the Week

וכי תזבחו זבח תודה.
The Midrash Tanchuma writes,
אמר רבי פנחס ורבי לוי לעתיד לבא, כל הקרבנות כלן בטליו, וקרבן תודה אינו בטל לעולם.

That when משיח will soon come, all the קרבנות will be annulled, except for the קרבן תודה. And why is it so? Since it is written in the verse,

הודו לד' כי טוב כי "לעולם" חסדו
Which shows that the act of thanking Hashem will never be nullified, even when משיח comes. From here we can see the greatness of thanking Hashem.
