Special Ring

I inherited a diamond ring and kept it in a safe place for over a decade. A few years ago, I was worried someone had seen it, so I hid it. But then I could no longer remember where I had put it and despite turning the house upside down, I couldn't find it. It's been about 3 years, and every time I think about it I get sad, as the ring belonged to a very special lady. Erev Shabbos I asked Hashem, that if it is in the house he should show me where it is, and I would thank Him publicly. Today as we were Pesach cleaning, we found it behind the windowsill! Thank You Hashem!

Well for Appointments

As a professional hairdresser, my daughter had several booked appointments and couldn't cancel them the same day. However, she wasn't feeling well. I kept thanking Hashem constantly saying Mizmor L'sodah and promised to announce publicly if she's able to do their hair. Right before the appointment, she walked downstairs as if nothing happened, and all went perfectly fine as hoped! Thank You Hashem!

Pulled Leg

I got startled from something while walking up the stairs and lost my balance. I fell down quite a few steps, and was really worried that I broke my foot, or worse. Thank You Hashem, I got up and walked normal with only a pulled muscle or tendon on my foot!

Thought of the Week

In the Chovos Halevovos, it is written in שער חשבון הנפש in chapter three, that when a Jew performs a mitzvah, in order for the mitzvah to be complete, he must internalize and see the good of the Creator and thank the Creator for all the grace that He does with him on a daily basis. Thus, the Jew will be able to keep the mitzvah in its entirety. It turns out that when a Jew thanks Hashem during the performance of a mitzvah, he raises the mitzvah to such a high level that it becomes a true and correct mitzvah and in the purest way of כוונה.

Check Cleared

I deposited a check in the bank last night, but the system put it on hold. Last time this happened it took 10 days to release it. I said I will thank Hashem if they release it right away. I called Chase customer service; the rep went out of her way to verify the check and make it available! Thank You Hashem!
