Hidden Valves

Yesterday, I moved into a new house and the water wasn't working. Being that the water company was there a day before to start the water service, I didn't know what the problem was. I called the water company and after half an hour on hold, they told me the water should be on. However, today they are doing water flushing maintenance and I won't be having water for a while. I looked all over the house for the main valves thinking maybe it's shut, but I couldn't find them anywhere. The cleaning crew showed up, but there was no water, something that was extremely necessary to complete the task. After many attempts, I said, "Thank You Hashem that the water isn't working. Hashem, it doesn't make sense that there's maintenance on the exact day I decided to move, there must be something here You're trying to show me. Hashem, I'm starting to clean up, if you want us to have water you'll make sure that the water will suddenly work. You can do anything. And when it does, I'll thank You publicly". 5 minutes later, I was walking near the laundry room and noticed that the painters moved the washing machine. The valves I was looking for were right behind it! I turned it on, and within minutes there was water working throughout the house. Thank You Hashem!

Saved before a Tragedy

I was in the Catskills and had a hectic day. I finally arrived at my colony and was looking for a parking but could not find one. After a while, I parked and blocked in another car, thinking that I will be up earlier than that person in the morning. A half hour later the person called me if I can please move my car because he is a Hatzalah member and need 24 hours access to his car. I was very tired but went down to move it. I started my car and heard a noise from the back! I couldn't believe it! My little baby was still in the car! That's when I really started thanking Hashem that I had to move my car, and Hashem saved my baby!

Thought of the Week

Dear Reb Yid, have you once thought that when you shake the lulav while making a Brocha, you hold the esrog upside down, and after the Brocha you turn it over. This is a sign that a Jew must remember for eternity, that if a particular situation is in a state of decline/downwards, meaning it is not going well, then make a Brocha. Thank Hashem, everything will automatically turn over for the better.

Educating the Kids

We were in a mall today with the kids, when returning to the car I realized I lost my remote to the car. Luckily I had a spare key. My wife went back to check if it was lost in the mall. I told my kids, "Thank You Hashem it's only a remote, nothing worse". As I finished saying this, she came back with the remote! I would like to give an extra thanks to Hashem that I was able to show my kids the power of thanking Hashem!
